Egyptian Teas and Caparra Gowns.

Now that we have had Chinese, Japanese, and a few other nationality fads, the next is to be the Egyptian order. There will be Egyptian teas for entertainments, and all the hostesses will play Caparra, at least in gown. Already the London smart set has commenced its Egyptian teas, and of course, as the fad spreads, it will be fitted to match.

"Dodo," the irrepressible Dodo, now Lady Asquith, heads the craze. In a room in her London house the walls are covered with gray curtains, in order to give a stoneware effect. Palm leaves and grasses are fastened on the paper. Egyptian jars are placed about the room, and Oriental lamps, burning with pale blue and green lights, serve to shed a strange brilliance over the world decorations. The ceiling of the tea table is decorated with lotus flowers, the table standing in a secluded corner, filled with a low, wide seat.

RED.

An Oriental Sofa.

An unused single iron bed has been put to use and disguised in a very clever way by a friend of mine living in a very small flat, in a writer in an English magazine. In one corner, against the old side of the wall, has been hung a width of dull red cotton, and into this corner has been thrust the bed. Across the mattress is thrown a curtain of dull embroidery. Against the wall, about a third of the way from the head of the bed, has been fastened an iron crane of curious pattern, from the end of which hangs a quaint Eastern lamp. Over the crane is thrown a long piece of richly embroidered silken drape, the ends of the drape falling over the head of the bed. Innumerable pillows of bright hues bestow this originally planned sofa, and no more desirable suggestion of the Orient is to be found anywhere.

RED.

Filling Up a Window.

An excellent way of filling up an unnecessary window, or one that looks out on an ugly view, is to have the lower part built out into a small alcove, lined with plush, with a small steel running round it, and brackets for china; at the back a little window is covered with gilded network, and in the front a sign is left which can be filled up as the owner desires; one of the advantages is that light is not excluded from the top of the window or from the top of the alcove, so that it would be especially suitable for the small libraries where the book window looks out on a maw, and yet where light is distinctly needed.

DON'T GIVE UP THE SHIP

Men Who Have Adhered to This Rule

If Your Life Is Worth Saving, It Is Worth Taking Care of Your Health, Nor Should You Give Up in Despair if Your Family Physician Fails to Benefit You—However Deep-seated Your Disease You Can Be Cured.

Mr. Joseph A. Shoemaker, a Grand Army veteran who served in Company K, Twenty-third Ohio Infantry (President Hayes' regiment), and who is now in the war and navy division of the Pension service, residing at 308 K street northeast, says: "I suffered for several years from prostatic, chronic constipation, and general derangement of the stomach and liver. I tried many doctors and patent medicines, but was in no wise benefited. My cure seemed almost miraculous under Dr. Walker's treatment. My troubles have all disappeared." The above is sworn to and subscribed before Walter A. Brown, notary public, October 29, 1904.

Mr. Henry C. Lamkin, of 914 M street southeast, has resided in Washington fifteen years, and for the past three years has been foreman in charge of his and cutter work of the navy and docks, in a statement sworn to and subscribed before Walter A. Brown, notary public, October 19, 1904, Mr. Lamkin says: "I suffered from prostatic, chronic constipation, and general derangement of the stomach and liver. I tried many doctors and patent medicines, but was in no wise benefited. My cure seemed almost miraculous under Dr. Walker's treatment. My troubles have all disappeared." The above is sworn to and subscribed before Walter A. Brown, notary public, October 19, 1904.

Mr. S. Brooks writes from Brookton, Mass.: "For nine years I suffered from nervous prostration, heart disease, and general ill-health. I sought relief in vain from doctors and proprietary medicines. In ten weeks Dr. Walker's treatment has restored me to sound health. Dr. Walker has no equal."

All who have taken Dr. Walker's treatment tell the same story of his success in curing disorders of the brain and nervous system, diseases of the skin and blood, catarrh, asthma, consumption, malaria, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuritis, hemorrhoids, diseases of the stomach and bowels, and all affections of the lungs, throat, heart, liver, stomach, kidneys, bladder, bowels, and other organs. Young or middle-aged men suffering from the effects of their own follies, vices, or excesses, or men contemplating marriage who are conscious of an impediment or disability of their whole system, should consult Dr. Walker, who has been the means of restoring hundreds of such unfortunate men to health, strength, and happiness. Dr. Walker may be consulted free of charge, personally or by letter. His well-known sanitarium, at 1411 Pennsylvania avenue, adjoining Will's Hotel, is open daily for consultation and treatment. Office hours, 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Wednesday and Saturday evenings, 7 to 9; Sundays, 10 to 12. Charge for treatment very low. All interviews and correspondence strictly confidential. No cases made public without consent of patients.

What the Soldier Boys Did. The wind-up of military evolutions yesterday in an oyster roast at the Hotel Bedford was fun and fast and all-pervading. The exercise and bearing of the boys, the quickness of the whetted appetites and brightened the faces of a majority. Early morning saw the battery of moving toward the park at Brightwood, and at noon Captain Harbor's forty cavalrymen were on the way to join them. After interesting drill and firing exercises with two guns taken along by the battery, the whole party started for the hotel at 4 o'clock, and the evening saw them gathered about the festive board at the hotel. Parades in the city that attracted general attention were by the Henderson Rifle and Drum Corps and Mount Pleasant Drum and Bugle Corps. Both organizations went through exhibition evolutions that gained applause.

HER THROAT WAS PIERCED.

Q. Kate Kirk Murdered by Charles Richards, Who Then Commits Suicide.

WATKINS DEPOT, N. Y., Nov. 29.—This morning about 5:30 o'clock Miss Jennie Caldwell, an employee of the Hotel Kendall, went to the room occupied by Miss Kate Kirk, another employee, to call her. She did not receive any answer. After Mrs. Kendall, the landlady, had been called, Miss Caldwell pushed the key from the keyhole inside and unlocked the door with the key to her room.

It was found that a murder and possibly a suicide had been committed. The room was small and the bed stood facing the door. On the front side of the bed lay the dead body of Kate Kirk. A large carving knife, such as is used in restaurants, was on the bureau which stood at the foot of the bed. This knife had been stuck into the girl's throat in front and then turned and withdrawn. She was lying on her side facing the wall and was undressed and covered up partially with the bedclothes. The knife had severed the interior and exterior arteries as well as the jugular vein.

On the other side of the bed lay Charles N. Richards, of this village, a restaurant keeper, and former landlady of the Jefferson House. He lay in a pool of blood, as his throat was cut in a very ragged and jagged manner. He was unconscious from the loss of blood, but was breathing.

The girl had evidently been dead some hours, as her body was cold. There was a large pool of blood on the floor, and it looked as if Richards had held the girl on the floor and cut her throat. There is a mark on the wall as if she were choked to prevent her making an outcry. The only blood in the bed is the pool in which Richards was found lying.

Richards was removed to an adjoining room, and Drs. Barnes and Sull dressed his wounds. He was found to be under the influence of morphine. He died at 10:40 o'clock without regaining consciousness.
